uman Services Council

Photos by Kent Smith

Melissa Jones-Harris from Caroline County Department of Social Services presents mentoring awards Jan. 24 at the Human Services Council annual ceremony as John Nussear looks on.

PTA and Little League and serves a role model for children.

The two Organizations of the Year were the South Caroline Mustangs and Busy Bee Cleaning Service. For the Mustangs, President Bruce Hancock was specifically honored because of his work coaching, attending meetings and scheduling games. He has built a trailer to transport and distribute equipment. The Pop Warner football program has more than 160 players and cheerleaders with most of the football teams making the postseason and both cheerleading squads going to regionals.

Busy Bee Cleaning Service comes from the Benedictine School for Exceptional Children and they help at businesses and agencies, including their nominators, the Human Services Council.

Sandra Barry presented the final award — Council Member of the Year. Margaret Myers is one of the founding members of the Caroline council, has served as county commission president and now serves as one of the two trustees for Chesapeake College.

"Her dedication to the citizens of Caroline has been phenomenal," said Barry.

Margaret Meyers was honored as Council Member of the Year.